

Inside Out

When Riley's parents got home, they were surprised to see she wasn't back from school. They tried calling her cell phone, but she didn't pick up.

In Headquarters, Anger, Fear, and Disgust were regretting the plan. "This is madness!" shouted Anger. "She shouldn't run away!"

"Let's get that idea out of her head," said Disgust. They tried to remove the idea bulb, but it wouldn't budge. Then they started to panic and pushed every button on the console!

Joy chased Sadness through Long Term Memory and into Imagination Land.

"Riley's better off without me!" Sadness yelled as she hopped onto a cloud and floated away. Then Joy had a crazy idea. She used the Imaginary Boyfriend Generator to create a tower of boyfriends.

"NOW!" she screamed. All the imaginary boyfriends leaned forward and launched Joy onto a trampoline on the crumbling Family Island. She bounced off it and zoomed into the air, right toward Sadness.

"Hang on!" Joy yelled as she grabbed Sadness. The two soared toward Headquarters and smacked right into the window! Anger, Disgust, and Fear were thrilled to see them. There was just one problem: the windows in Headquarters didn't open.

Disgust had a brilliant idea. She made Anger so mad that flames shot out of the top of his head. Then she used the flames to cut through the glass. Joy and Sadness climbed inside.

"Sadness, it's up to you," said Joy. "Riley needs you."

The Emotions watched as Sadness stepped up to the console and gently pulled the idea bulb out. Inside the bus, Riley stood up. "I wanna get off," she said, and ran home.