書いた作文です。これを読んで、あとの問いに答えなさい。

Looking back over this week, there were two things in my mind.
One is about 　(ア)　 .

Yuta and I are in the same class. On Monday morning I asked Yuta, "Did you do your English homework?" "Yes, I did." answered Yuta. "Did you?" Yuta asked. So I said, "No, I forgot to do it. Will you tell me the answers to the homework?" He was * silent for a while. He looked sad and said, "I don't want to. You should do it yourself. It's not good to ask others the answers to your homework." I was very surprised at that. (イ) I was a little angry.

During * lunch break I did my homework without playing soccer with my friends. It was a hard work. I had to use my dictionary many times. I finished it just in time.

In English class, my teacher asked me some questions about the homework. They were difficult questions, but I could answer them easily. I was very happy.

I told my family about the English lesson later that day. Everyone enjoyed my story. At that time I remembered Yuta's words. "Do it myself." He did not tell me the answers, and now I understood why. He was really thinking of me.

The other is about 　(ウ)　 .

Yesterday morning I visited one of my friends, Ken, to do my homework. Then I heard something outside the house. In the garden, I saw three little dogs with their mother. The little dogs were very cute. I love dogs very much, so I asked Ken to give me one. He said, "OK. You can take * whichever you like. I hope he or she will be happy with you."

I brought the smallest dog home. When I went back home, I asked my father, "May I keep this dog?" "I think it's OK if you take care of it by yourself. But you must ask mom." So I asked her, "Is it all right for me to keep this dog? " "All right," said my mother. "But you must take good care of it." I was very happy to hear her words.

After dinner my mother told us an interesting story (エ)(Coco / dog / a / named / about). Coco was a dog taught to help people who could not see well. One day Coco was walking along the road with her owner, when a car came * toward them. They were going to be * run over. She * pushed her owner back and stood between him and the car to save him. She always wanted to help her owner.

The story moved me very much. I hope my dog will be as clever and as brave as Coco some day.
